

THE FAIR IS BIG SUCCESS

Very Gratifying Results on the Opening Night.

ACCIDENT TO A YOUTH

Jefferys Stainback Thrown from Bicycle and Perhaps Fatally Injured. Many Charters Are Granted.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.) RALEIGH, N. C., Oct. 12.—The management of the Masonic fair pronounced it a splendid success from the very start, surpassing the most sanguine expectations of its promoters. The receipts for the opening night footed up $1,547, the proceeds from the country store alone having been $44. The fair will be in full blast every night now for two weeks.

Grand Master H. I. Clark, of Scotland Neck, who is here to the opening of the fair, says he expects to lay the cornerstone of the Masonic Temple early in the new year. However, it now seems more likely that this ceremony will fall to the lot of Mr. Clark's successor, who will, in all probability, be Judge Francis D. Winston, as the corner-stone will scarcely be laid before March or April.

ACCIDENT TO BICYCLIST.

Master Jefferys Stainback, age nine-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Stainback, was thrown from his bicycle this morning, and probably fatally injured. He is still unconscious, and it is feared that there is confusion of the brain. An older daughter was run over and killed by a train at High Point two years ago.

Dr. B. W. Kilgore, State chemist, has returned from attendance upon the Association of Commissioners of Agriculture of the Southern States. He was re-elected secretary of the association.

CHARTERS GRANTED.

The Carriage Investment Company was chartered to-day with $10,000 capital; W. C. Pelly principal incorporator.

The Vantroy Livery Company, of Greensboro, is incorporated with $15,000 capital; George C. Groues being the largest stockholder.

The Cabanis Land, Lumber and Mining Company, of Concord, is chartered with $15,000 capital; J. L. Peck is a large stockholder.

The Nazareth Orphan's Home, of Crescent, Rowan county, is incorporated, to be conducted under the auspices of the Reformed Church of North Carolina.

MURDER CHARGED TO DAVIS

Charles Pate, in His Dying Declaration, Said Davis Ambushed Him.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.) KINSTON, N. C., October 12.—Frank Davis, arrested last night, charged with the murder of Charles Pate, September 20th, about nine miles from Kinston, Pate died Friday from the effects of the wound and was buried Saturday afternoon. Both men are white. The coroner's jury recommended the arrest of Frank Davis. Deputy Sheriff W. H. Sutton, in company with Anus Davis, brother of Frank Davis, went out to the Davis home last night and arrested and brought him to Kinston and lodged him in jail.

The dying declaration of Pate was the principal testimony from which the jury arrived at the verdict, though there is said to be strong corroborative evidence. After being told by the physician that he could not live, Pate charged Davis with ambushing him on the evening of September 20th, and gave as his reasons: First, that he recognized Davis in a voice the day before last night and second, that he and Davis had had some words a short while before, at which time Davis had cursed him and threatened him for superseding him in a job.

Pate's declaration states that while he was dying on the ground, after being stricken, Davis came up near him, and said to him: "My God, am I to die here by myself?" and that Davis returned "Yes, but in a voice the day before last night." Pate recognized Davis. Again, says Pate, Davis called to his dog, which was barking at the body of the stricken man, to come away. This evidence is said by the State to be corroborated by circumstances. In rebuttal, it is said that Davis claims the ability to establish an alibi and completely clear himself of all suspicion. The preliminary trial is being held to-night.

NEW CLERK AND STENOGRAPHER OF THE STATE SUPREME COURT.

MR. MAURY B. WATTS, Stenographer Supreme Court.

The appointment of Mr. Maury B. Watts has been announced by the judges of the State Supreme Court of Appeals, to succeed Mr. H. Stewart Jones as stenographer to the court. Mr. Watts is a native of Pittsylvania county; is twenty-three years of age, and has for some time been stenographer in the office of Senator Henry T. Wickham. He is considered an expert in his line, and his friends are sure he will make a fine officer in his new position.

When a dispute arose between two of the older boys. With a heavy stick young Linger struck at a son of Mayor Lively, out missed him and hit the little girl who was standing in the group. Besides the injuries on the head the little one lost the use of the left arm, the nerves of which seem to have been affected. The wounds were dressed by Dr. Young and Exum and it is not thought they will prove serious.

The cars, which have for a long while been used to carry several hundred mechanics from Salisbury to Spencer shops night and morning, are being altered and enclosed, so as to be more comfortable during the winter months. Hereafter they have been altered the plan of summer cars, thus exposing the mechanics to severe weather.

Charles Graham, who escaped from the Kowan county convict camp a few days ago, is still at large, though the authorities have made strenuous efforts to capture him. Graham was sent up for robbing a lady of her purse while on the street.

Senator Lee S. Overman, who is now on a Western tour with W. B. Hearst, of New York, expects to return to Salisbury in time for the celebration of his silver wedding which he and Mrs. Overman will observe on October 30th.

In the election held in Hickory yesterday the town voted for the issuance of bonds for waterworks and sewerage, giving a majority of 78 in favor of the bonds. It is learned that work will begin at an early date and that good, pure water will be obtained.

such conditions the policemen and the peace officer are having a holiday.

A PEACEFUL CITY. Not a single arrest of a white person has been made in Greensboro this week, and yet the Elm City is crowded as it was never crowded before. The crowds were larger to-day than yesterday.

At an early hour this morning Danville emptied a train load of natives in a sea of peace. A score or more enlarged the Richmond delegation, and other nearby Virginia points increased the crowds. The Danville contingent was headed by Judge Archibald M. Alken, a native of that city, and a broad-minded man, who stands six feet two inches in his stockings, and as judge of the Hastings Court of Danville is a terror to evil-doers.

A BIT OF HISTORY.

The proceedings to-day, when on the historic battle ground where, on March 15th, 1781, the battle of Guilford Court-house was fought. On the ground where we to-day made merry, General Nathaniel Green, at the head of a small army of American soldiers, fought the Revolutionary war, and Tarleton, the Phil Sheridan of that period, and a great battle for American liberty was fought.

Cornwallis and Tarleton conceived the idea that the only way to subjugate the rebels of 78 was to burn their houses, destroy their cattle, outrage their women, and tear up their crops by the roots. Sherman and Sheridan adopted the same tactics in the sixties, to the shame of modern civilization, so-called. The tactics succeeded under the latter day advocates. They did not succeed under Cornwallis and Tarleton. The reason they did not succeed was because Nathaniel Green and the riflemen of Surry and Wilkes counties, Kort Carrington and the two worthies at King's Mountain and Guilford Courthouse and crippled them so that they were an easy prey to Washington and Rochambeau at Yorktown. In like manner General Joe Johnston crippled the Rebels at Bentonville, but the Washington of the Confederacy had already given up at Appomattox, and the longed for French recognition of the Confederacy had failed to materialize, and there was no Rochambeau.

It was 1855, but Washington and Rochambeau to the contrary, notwithstanding, it is the opinion of careful students of revolutionary posterity that if he had been in the battle of Guilford Court-house there would have been no surrender at Yorktown. On the sacred ground upon which this battle was fought the celebration of Carolina's Old Home Day were held to-day.

A good deal of fervid oratory had been left over from the Opera House entertainment of yesterday, and was on tap, and when the trains that left the city every twenty minutes, beginning at 2 o'clock, had emptied about eight thousand people on the battle ground, five miles distant. General Ransom presided again; that is to say, he held the gavel, but the grand old man is getting feeble, and Dr. McVey had to come to his assistance, and he did the actual work of presiding. He did it gracefully and well.

Tarheels love to hear good speaking, and they heard it to-day. The speakers were Hon. Jos. M. Dixon, of Montana; Dr. Paul Barringer, of Virginia; Dr. A. C. Dixon, of Boston; Dr. Walter Page, of New York; Hon. Mural Halstead, of Ohio; Dr. E. A. Alderman, of Louisiana; and ex-Senator William H. C. Boyd, of North Carolina, all sons of the Old North State, except Mr. Halstead, and he is a grandson. The great meeting was closed with a benediction by Dr. Moore, of Richmond.

OLD-TIME PICNIC.

Then came the old-time picnic dinner, in fact, two of them. One was laid by the ladies of Greensboro and surrounding regions, and the other by the ladies of the North State, except Mr. Halstead, and he is a grandson. The great meeting was closed with a benediction by Dr. Moore, of Richmond.

NOTED BOND CASES

The Bondholders Must Stand the Court Costs.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.) WINSTON-SALEM, N. C., Oct. 12.—An adjourned meeting in the case of Color and Company, of New York, against the State of North Carolina, was held this afternoon before Mr. Clement Alamy, special master in chancery. Sixty-five bondholders were present, and the case was argued by the attorneys for the bondholders. The court held that the bondholders must stand the costs of the case.

Every wandering son promised to use his influence with the Congress and the State to accomplish this end. Greensboro loves a crowd, and knows how to take care of one. The great reunion was not closed before the Central City of the South, and the afternoon adjourned judges say it will surpass the State Fair at Raleigh in the number and quality of exhibits. The poultry exhibit is the crowning feature, and is said to be the largest and most varied of any poultry show ever set up in America.

Hurrah and hurrah, again! for the Old North State.

ON HISTORIC GROUND

Ten Thousand on Guilford Battlefield.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.) GREENSBORO, N. C., October 12.—The crowning event of the ceremonies attending the State reunion of non-resident natives of North Carolina was the celebration to-day at historic Guilford Courthouse battlefield. A large number of addresses breathing patriotic national fervor and filial devotion to their mother State from distinguished returning sons. Mingled among ten thousands were five hundred women students of the State Normal College, two hundred of Greensboro Female College, three hundred male students from Oak Ridge Institute, two hundred boys and girls from Guilford College, many from Whitsett Institute, all of whom accompanied the delegates to the State University, Wake Forest, Davidson, Trinity and other State colleges.

Ex-Senator Ransom presided over the session, and Rev. Dr. Moore, of Virginia, gave the invocation. The following short addresses from a splendid galaxy of returning sons, the most prominent and important being from Bryan, of Georgia's Supreme Court; Judge Fitzgerald, of Nevada; Bartlett, of Indiana; Congressman Dixon, of Montana; Dr. C. Dixon, of Massachusetts; President of the Faculty of the University of Virginia, of New York; Mural Halstead, of Ohio; President of Tulane University, of Louisiana; United States Judge and former North Carolina Senator Pritchard, of the District of Columbia.

The bride formerly attended Ke Mar College in this city and is pretty.

Academy of Medicine

The Richmond Academy of Medicine and Surgery held its regular meeting last night at the P. B. Headquarters. President Mercer was in the chair, and the attendance was very good. Dr. J. Shelton Horsley led the discussion, Dr. Edward McGuire, who was to read a paper, was unavoidably absent.

a keynote by saying that a distinctive trait of North Carolinians at home and abroad was love rather than pride for their State, adding that in some States he had lived in State pride might become a matter of excess.

Dixon, of Montana, made many humorous hits, closing with the suggestion that perhaps the State had lost many sons because of intolerance of others' opinions, saying he left the State for that cause, but had gladly noted in recent years that this unfortunate trait was fast disappearing.

Halstead's remarks were greeted with frequent applause. He spoke with feeling of the tombs of his parents in Ohio, on the marble slabs of which were engraved the significant words that told of their birthplace being "North Carolina." Salutes of humor followed frequent laughter.

Tom Benton was a Tar Heel, he said, and was the only man who ever interviewed Andrew Jackson and walked about comfortably afterward.

HISTORIC HUMOR.

"My father thought anything contrary to the opinion of Jackson was utterly unreasonable and was not to be tolerated. My own political history has been somewhat mixed. Greatly influenced by the State and the local politician, I went so far in my political eccentricity as to vote for Horace Greeley (laughter), and have voted for two Democratic Presidents, and somehow," turning to State officers on the platform, "this atmosphere here feels like it is not improving, but unsafe to divulge it."

Two sacred trees in my father's yard in Ohio were the persimmon and mulberry. They stood on the banks of the river, and were the only trees of that kind in the State. The persimmon had been named after one legend said, because of the other because an Irishman was drowned there. North Carolina has a great hereafter, as it has a highly honored heretofore in success or defeat.

Dr. A. C. Dixon took the children of Israel forty-eight days to get to Egypt and forty days to get Egypt out of them, so while one could now get out of North Carolina in two hours, it took two centuries to get out of them. In all the North Carolina history, the great lesson to be learned was that of the great eloquence, pathos and fraternal greeting, epigrams that fixed the attention and left deep impressions behind. To quote them would require a day.

MEMORIAL TO CONGRESS.

At the conclusion of the address Judge Francis D. Winston read a memorial to Congress, signed by representatives from eleven States, urging the United States Government to take charge of Guilford Courthouse and convert it into a park. The resolution was adopted unanimously, and another resolution offered by the North Carolina Society in Baltimore, making arrangements to form a Federal Monument to the battle of Guilford.

At the conclusion of the exercises at 2:30 o'clock, the delegates and visitors enjoyed a beautiful spread and basket picnic in the grove near the pavilion. The crowd returned to the city, and most of them spent the afternoon at the Central Carolina Fair.

To-night at 9:30 o'clock there was memorial general reception at the Smith Memorial Building, adjoining the First Presbyterian Church, and the State song at 11 o'clock wound up the reunion festivities.

The failure of the fireworks to arrive caused general disappointment, and was the only misfortune in the whole series of remarkably successful exercises.

One thousand dollars' worth were purchased in the city and shipped a week ago, but have not yet arrived.
